Candidate Profiles

James D. Bruhn

I have lived in West Bountiful for 18 years. I have been attending City Council and Planning & Zoning meetings regularly for 10 years. I enjoy service, am a hard worker, and have a listening ear. I want to be a voice for the average citizen and do my part in keeping our community a wonderful place to live.

Troy D. Larsen

I am a Utah native, married with four children. I have been a West Bountiful resident collectively for eight years. I know that West Bountiful is a wonderful place to live, this is why we chose to move back.

I decided to run for West Bountiful City Council due to the growth and changes the City is experiencing and will for a time to come. I would like to see better standardized building guidelines during this time of commercial and residential expansion.

I feel there are inconsistencies with building practices & planning areas that need to be improved to maintain equality for all residents. While growth and expansion are a good thing, I also love the Hometown Flavor that West Bountiful has and want to help maintain that atmosphere.

Valerie Shaw

My husband and I moved here to raise our two children in a smaller rural community. We feel like we have found "a little patch of heaven."

I have worked in the public school system for 11 years. I am currently an elementary principal and licensed realtor. I have seen the difference a community can make when they work to support each other.

Our city is experiencing some challenges with growth and development, traffic, and the infrastructure in the city. I am excited about what is happening but also concerned about the long-term affect on our city. I will listen to the citizens and be the voice to represent your opinions and concerns. I would love to have your vote on September 11. www.vote4orshaw.com.

Joseph Child

Coming from a family that has lived and worked in West Bountiful for generations, I feel that the family is our community's greatest treasure. Now, with a family of my own, I have taken a greater interest in the growth and development of West Bountiful. Having worked alongside many West Bountiful residents, I feel that I could represent their worries and challenges effectively. Also, working in construction, I am concerned and familiar with the challenges that growth brings to communities and am willing to work to preserve the values and characteristics that make West Bountiful a great city.

Alan Malan

I love our rural look and feel and want to keep that, and improve the financial stability of our city. We have lived in West Bountiful for over 12 years, raising our girls here, and I would like to give back to the community and serve on City Council. Recently, I have been involved as a member of the South Davis Transit Draft Environmental Impact Statement sub-committee. I believe that through the sub-committee's efforts, and the efforts of city staff, we were able to keep our limited bus routes (UTA was proposing to get rid of the limited routes we have now). Our city is also faced with an aging infrastructure that needs repair and upgrades, and we have annexed some new homes into our city and need to provide them with essential city services.

In serving as a city councilman for the past four years, the city has grown, experienced many changes, and still kept it's rural atmosphere. I feel that continuity with the previous council and the new city council is important, in order to keep to the city's master plan. Coming with this new election, and the recent resignation of one of our current council members, this new council could have four new members with six months or less of experience. If I am re-elected, we would have two members with four or more years of experience on the council. In order to keep the city's momentum, I feel that I could help new council members in the learning process and still keep the city moving forward with projects already in progress.

Brad Hansen

There are a lot of opportunities for growth and I hope as a city we move forward in a fashion that preserves our integrity and small town feel. My wife, Karen, my young daughter Brooke and I moved to West Bountiful two years ago. We love this area and we are grateful to live here. We moved here because we wanted to be a part of a small tight knit community. About me specifically, I attended the University of Delaware, Salt Lake Community College and the University of Utah where I graduated with a BS in Business Management. I am currently employed at Regence Blue Cross Blue Shield of Utah.

Kenneth Romney

As many cities are, we are now and will more so in the future be faced with development of any land that property owners will allow to be developed. Property owners have their rights. Development is not a bad thing if done properly. While serving on the West Bountiful Planning and Zoning Commission and updating the city's master plan, the largest input received from the public was "keep the rural feel of West Bountiful." I strongly feel the same way. Development in and around our city will have an impact on our city. To maintain our small town feel and rural atmosphere we need to be actively involved to guide our future and not let outside influences guide it for us. Sometimes we need to be able to say "No".

Roger Wray

I have lived in West Bountiful for a total of about 24 years.

I have been representing West Bountiful for the Utah Transit Authority trying to make sure our interests are taken into account.

I love this city and have decided to serve in any capacity I can. I have no political agendas. I have attended most of the City Council and Planning and Zoning Committee meetings over the past two years and I understand the issues. With my experience in community development I would like to help ensure that infrastructure and open space keep up with the tremendous growth we are experiencing, and work with the golf course to help make it more profitable and enticing to golfers outside the community. There are also many issues involving Holly Oil that need to be addressed.
